ECO-List

ECO A00–A99

NOTES:

1. You may open the Bookmarks tab to the left, and scroll and select an ECO code to jump to that ECO code.
2. You also may search this document for a word or name using the Find command. Instead, you may use a particular ECO code (A57). Another way to search would be for a particular move; e.g., 2.Be3, 5.Bxf8, etc. (do not put a space between the number and the period/s or between the period/s and move notation). For searching for a proper name with a special character Réti, Tübingen, etc.), use the proper name without the special character.
3. PGN game collection files for ECO A00-A99 for studying can be obtained from the following webaddress at the Bookup website; however, Bookup was replaced with a new Chess Openings Software in 2007. The link for Chess Openings Software on that page is to the old Bookup software, so you should not use that link. I am unsure how long the webpage and files will be available. Also, the pgn files may contain more variations than listed herein.

ECO B00–B99

NOTES:

1. You may open the Bookmarks tab to the left, and scroll and select an ECO code to jump to that ECO code.
2. You also may search this document for a word or name using the Find command. Instead, you may use a particular ECO code (B57). Another way to search would be for a particular move; e.g., 2.Be3, 5.Bxf8, etc. (do not put a space between the number and the period/s or between the period/s and move notation). For searching for a proper name with a special character Réti, Tübingen, etc.), use the proper name without the special character.
3. PGN game collection files for ECO A00-A99 for studying can be obtained from the following webaddress at the Bookup website; however, Bookup was replaced with a new Chess Openings Software in 2007. The link for Chess Openings Software on that page is to the old Bookup software, so you should not use that link. I am unsure how long the webpage and files will be available. Also, the pgn files may contain more variations than listed herein.

NOTES:

1. You may open the Bookmarks tab to the left, and scroll and select an ECO code to jump to that ECO code.
2. You also may search this document for a word or name using the Find command. Instead, you may use a particular ECO code (C57). Another way to search would be for a particular move; e.g., 2.Be3, 5.Bxf8, etc. (do not put a space between the number and the period/s or between the period/s and move notation). For searching for a proper name with a special character Réti, Tübingen, etc.), use the proper name without the special character.
3. PGN game collection files for ECO A00-A99 for studying can be obtained from the following webaddress at the Bookup website; however, Bookup was replaced with a new Chess Openings Software in 2007. The link for Chess Openings Software on that page is to the old Bookup software, so you should not use that link. I am unsure how long the webpage and files will be available. Also, the pgn files may contain more variations than listed herein.

ECO-List

ECO D00–D99

NOTES:

1. You may open the Bookmarks tab to the left, and scroll and select an ECO code to jump to that ECO code.
2. You also may search this document for a word or name using the Find command. Instead, you may use a particular ECO code (D57). Another way to search would be for a particular move; e.g., 2.Be3, 5.Bxf8, etc. (do not put a space between the number and the period/s or between the period/s and move notation). For searching for a proper name with a special character Réti, Tübingen, etc.), use the proper name without the special character.
3. PGN game collection files for ECO A00-A99 for studying can be obtained from the following webaddress at the Bookup website; however, Bookup was replaced with a new Chess Openings Software in 2007. The link for Chess Openings Software on that page is to the old Bookup software, so you should not use that link. I am unsure how long the webpage and files will be available. Also, the pgn files may contain more variations than listed herein.

ECO E00–E99

NOTES:

1. You may open the Bookmarks tab to the left, and scroll and select an ECO code to jump to that ECO code.
2. You also may search this document for a word or name using the Find command. Instead, you may use a particular ECO code (E57). Another way to search would be for a particular move; e.g., 2.Be3, 5.Bxf8, etc. (do not put a space between the number and the period/s or between the period/s and move notation). For searching for a proper name with a special character Réti, Tübingen, etc.), use the proper name without the special character.
3. PGN game collection files for ECO A00-A99 for studying can be obtained from the following webaddress at the Bookup website; however, Bookup was replaced with a new Chess Openings Software in 2007. The link for Chess Openings Software on that page is to the old Bookup software, so you should not use that link. I am unsure how long the webpage and files will be available. Also, the pgn files may contain more variations than listed herein.
